National Technical University of Athens (NTUA)

The National Technical University of Athens (NTUA) is celebrating 180 years of history in 2017. Founded in 1837, NTUA is the oldest Technical University in Greece and a prestigious University of Science and Technology, with eight Engineering Schools and a ninth School of Applied Mathematical and Physical Sciences. Faculty includes more than 500 members, along with 4000 researchers (research associates, post doc researchers, doctoral students, and other staff), and almost 24000 students. According to the QS World Universities Ranking 2016, NTUA is the leading academic institution in Greece and among the top-10 most active European universities and research institutes in the EU-funded Framework Programmes. Moreover, out of the 120.000 qualified engineers active today in Greece, over 40% are NTUA graduates.

A glorious moment in its history relates to the Uprising of November 1973, when students gathered at the Patission Campus, struggling against the dictatorship. The protest ended on November 17th with the unprovoked intervention of army tanks and the attack by the army and police against those besieged inside the NTUA Campus. Several demonstrators were killed and many more were arrested by the military police. The Junta fell a few months later and NTUA is being commemorated every year on November the 17th by the students at all levels, political parties, and the people of Greece in general.

Laboratory of Industrial and Energy Economics (LIEE / NTUA)

The Laboratory of Industrial and Energy Economics (LIEE) is an educational and research unit at the National Technical University of Athens (NTUA). Founded in the late 1980's, it is a well-established unit in European and national socioeconomic, policy and strategy research. Its research activities involve four main areas: i) Economic and Strategic Analysis of Industry, Innovation, Technology and Entrepreneurship, ii) Energy and Environmental policy, iii) Operations Research and Management Science, and iv) Information Society and Knowledge-based economy. LIEE is the most active Greek research unit in EU-funded socio-economic research in the context of Framework Programmes. Research activities are entirely funded through national and European research contracts (more than 130 research projects during the last 30 years) assigned mainly on a competitive basis. Moreover, LIEE has established strong links with government departments, industrial associations, local authorities and other partners both in the public and private sector.

LIEE is based in the School of Chemical Engineering, which is proudly celebrating its 100th anniversary, this October, as it was founded in 1917. The School has gained significant reputation through time, both nationally and internationally, and transformed into a modern School of Chemical Engineering, while it continuously evolves by introducing new courses and intensifying its research activities. Since the mid 60's, the School has been developing educational and research activities in the field of economics and business --since 1994 these are offered by LIEE-- aiming at educating engineering students able to understand the economic environment and deal with complex techno-economic and innovation systems.

Institute of Communication and Computer Systems (ICCS)

The Institute of Communication and Computer Systems (ICCS) of the School of Electrical and Computer Engineering (ECE) of NTUA was founded in 1992. It supports top-quality research, development activities and scientific services to private and public bodies. Its research priorities are mainly funded through the competitive calls of the European Commission, but also the private sector. ICCS tries to build a research personnel base alongside ECE's faculty so as to conduct state-of-the-art research and at the same time improve the School's research facilities and infrastructures.

ICCS has established - in cooperation with LIEE and the Greek Mobile Operators Association - an incubator for the valorization of research conducted at the NTUA and promotion of tech-entrepreneurship in the broader ICT area.

Costas Fotakis

Alternate Minister for Research & Innovation

Costas Fotakis has been appointed Alternate Minister for Research and Innovation in January 2015. He has been President of FORTH (Foundation for Research and Technology – Hellas), since 2011. He has also served as Director of the Institute of Electronic Structure and Laser (IESL) at FORTH (1997-2013) and he is Professor of Physics at the University of Crete. He has also served as Chairman of the Association of the Presidents of the Research Centers in Greece. Prof. Fotakis is the founder of the Laser and Applications Division of FORTH, and since 1990 has been leading the European Laser Facility at FORTH, which is currently part of the EU “LASERLAB-Europe” project, linking 26 major European laser infrastructures. He has been member of influential EU and national scientific policy panels and expert groups, including the European Strategy Forum for Research Infrastructures (ESFRI), the European Advisory Group for Research Potential, the Experts Committee for the Interim Evaluation of the EC 7th Framework Programme (Research Infrastructures), and the National Advisory Board for Research and Technology. He has also served as Chairman of the EU Advisory Group on Research Infrastructures in HORIZON 2020 and he has chaired the Expert Group on the role of Universities and Research Organizations in Smart Specialization Strategies for regional development.

“Start-ups and science mobilise innovation for the EU”

Elisabeth Lipiatou

European Commission

DG Communications Networks, Content and Technology & DG Research and Innovation

Dr. Elisabeth Lipiatou is Head of Unit at Directorate General “Communications Networks, Content & Technology”. Until August 2017 she was Head of Unit in Open Innovation Union and Open Sciences Directorate at Research and Innovation Directorate General. She led the Unit “Open and inclusive Societies” which deals with social and economic research with emphasis on migration, radicalisation & inequalities. Previously, she was Head of Unit ‘European Neighbourhood, Africa and Gulf’, International Cooperation Directorate, contributing to the EU international cooperation policy objectives through on research and innovation. Primary areas of responsibility include: research for policy, research & innovation, international negotiations, climate change and impacts, marine sciences & technology, sustainable development, natural hazards and risks, international cooperation policy and negotiation of international agreements, social and economic research, migration, cooperation with Member States and international stakeholders.

Opening Lectures

Wednesday, October 11, 9:30 - 10:30

Central Auditorium

“The Learning Economy and the Economics of Hope”

(video presentation)

Bengt-Åke Lundvall

Bengt-Åke Lundvall is professor in economics at Department of Business and Management at Aalborg University. His research is organized around a broad set of issues related to innovation systems, and learning economies.

Lundvall is founder of Globelics and was its Secretary General until the end of 2016. Since 1988, he has published more than 200 publications as books, journal articles, and book chapters (see www.vbn.aau.dk). His two most cited works are: Lundvall, B.-Å., (ed.) (2010), National Systems of Innovation: Towards a Theory of Innovation and Interactive Learning. London, Anthem.

Lundvall, B.-Å. and Johnson, B. (1994), ‘The Learning Economy’, Journal of Industry Studies, Vol. 1, No. 2, pp. 23-42.

New books:

Lundvall, B.-Å. (2016), The Learning Economy and the Economics of Hope, London, Anthem.

Chaminade, C., Lundvall, B.-Å. and Shagufta, H. (2017), Advanced Introduction to National Systems of Innovation, London, Elgar.

“On the Organization and Governance of Economic Activity”

Richard Nelson

Richard R. Nelson is an economist by formal training. Over his career he has taught at Oberlin College, Carnegie Mellon University, Yale University, the University of Manchester, and Columbia University. He has served as research economist and analyst at the Rand Corporation, and at the President’s Council of Economic Advisors. He presently is Professor of International and Public Affairs, Business, and Law, Emeritus, at Columbia University, and he works out of the Columbia Earth Institute.

His central interests have been in long-run economic change. Much of his research has been directed toward understanding technological change, how economic institutions and public policies influence the evolution of technology, and how technological change in turn induces institutional and economic change more broadly. His most cited works have included his book with Sidney Winter, An Evolutionary Theory of Economic Change, his The Moon and the Ghetto, and his National Innovation Systems. His most recent major publication is Innovation and the Evolution of Industries: History Friendly Models, which he co-authored with Franco Malerba, Luigi Orsenigo, and Sidney Winter.

He has received the Honda Prize, the Tinbergen Award, the Leontief Award, and the Veblen-Commons Award for his research, and has been awarded an honorary degree by several universities.

Keynote Speeches

“Innovative Enterprise and Sustainable Prosperity”

William Lazonick

William Lazonick is Professor of Economics at University of Massachusetts Lowell, and President of the Academic-Industry Research Network (www.theAIRnet.org). Previously, Lazonick was Assistant and Associate Professor of Economics at Harvard University, Professor of Economics at Barnard College of Columbia University, and Distinguished Research Professor at INSEAD in France. He has affiliations with SOAS, University of London; University of Ljubljana; and Institut Mines-Télécom in Paris. Lazonick earned a B.Com. at the University of Toronto, M.Sc. at London School of Economics, and Ph.D. in Economics at Harvard University. He holds honorary doctorates from Uppsala University and the University of Ljubljana.

His research focuses on the social conditions of innovation and economic development in advanced and emerging economies. His book Sustainable Prosperity in the New Economy? Business Organization and High-Tech Employment in the United States (Upjohn Institute 2009) won the 2010 Schumpeter Prize. His article, “Innovative Business Models and Varieties of Capitalism,” won the Henrietta Larson Award from Harvard Business School for best article in Business History Review in 2010 (he had previously won this prize in 1983). He received the HBR McKinsey Award for outstanding article in Harvard Business Review in 2014 for “Profits Without Prosperity: Stock Buybacks Manipulate the Market and Leave Most Americans Worse Off”.

The Institute for New Economic Thinking, Gatsby Foundation, European Commission, and Ford Foundation have funded his recent research on innovation, financialization, and development. For recent papers and op-eds, see <https://www.ineteconomics.org/research/experts/wlazonick>.

Special Session 1.1

Wednesday, October 11, 12:00 – 13:30

Special Session 1.1: Democracy, development and innovation

Location: Central Auditorium

Chair: SUSAN COZZENS (Georgia Institute of Technology, United States)

Speakers:

TASSOS GIANNITSIS (National and Kapodistrian University of Athens, Greece)

RODRIGO AROCENA (University of the Republic, Uruguay)

KEUN LEE (Seoul National University, Republic of Korea)

RASIGAN MAHARAJH (Tshwane University of Technology, South Africa)

This special session on democracy, development and innovation (in times of political and social turmoil) addresses the following points:

1. Prevailing learning and innovation trends (and policies) foster inequality.
2. Inequality fosters de-democratization:
 - (a) directly, through concentration of power and plutocratic rule (North and South)
 - (b) indirectly, through neo-fascist reactions against globalization and its consequences and against immigration (North)
 - (c) indirectly, through decreasing confidence in democracy as the road to social inclusion (South)
3. De-democratization should be faced:
 - (a) protecting freedoms, rights and constitutional republics
 - (b) connecting advances in learning and innovation with deprived sector and popular actors
 - (c) scrutinizing innovations in terms of democratization/de-democratization effects
 - (d) finding ways for democratizing innovation and design; in particular working to forge new alliances between shapers of innovations, social movements and public policies aimed at social inclusion.

All this calls for action. Some of the needed actions have well known theoretical roots; others are in need of new insights in view of the possibilities opened by recent science, technology and innovation outcomes. Both, action and insights are worth Globelics efforts: the issues at stake represent a challenge of vast consequences.

Special Session 1.2

Wednesday, October 11, 12:00 – 13:30

Special Session 1.2: Financial markets, financialization of corporations, and technological innovation

Location: Room 1

Chair: ALEXANDROS-ANDREAS KYRTSIS (National and Kapodistrian University of Athens)

Speaker: CARLOTA PÉREZ (London School of Economics / Tallinn University of Technology / Science Policy Research Unit - SPRU, University of Sussex / University College London / Anthemis Institute)

Comments:

DINESH ABROL (Institute for Studies in Industrial Development, New Delhi)

JOSÉ CASSIOLATO (Federal University of Rio de Janeiro)

MARIO SCERRI (Tshwane University of Technology, South Africa)

Closing Comment: WILLIAM LAZONICK (University of Massachusetts at Lowell)

The connection between finance and technological innovation has been variously explored by researchers in the field. As has been pointed out, risk perceptions of financiers and corporate executives, and the knowledge about projects have very often shaped the direction of R&D and innovation. Financialization of corporations and emphasis on shareholder value, as well as corporate decisions resulting from short-term oriented governance practices, have a significant impact on the appetite for innovation related risks. In this context the following questions arise: What had been the impact of the 2007-2009 financial crisis and the subsequent development of financial markets on the funding of technology intensive and innovative business ventures? What do we know from the dominant research streams? What is the state of the art in this field of inquiry, and what should be the preferable directions of research that might deliver powerful insights on the connection between financialization and innovation?

Special Session 1.3

Wednesday, October 11, 12:00 – 13:30

Special Session 1.3: A discussion about frameworks for promoting innovation, mutual learning and collaboration among donor agencies

Location: Room 8

Coordinators:

MICHIKO IIZUKA (United Nations University - MERIT)

JOANNA CHATAWAY (Science Policy Research Unit - SPRU, University of Sussex)

Speakers:

TERESA SOOP (Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency - SIDA)

MATTHEW WALLACE (International Development Research Centre – IDRC, Canada)

TATEO ARIMOTO (National Graduate Institute for Policy Studies - GRIPS & Centre for Research and Development Strategy - CRDS at Japan Science and Technology Agency - JST)

TILMAN ALTENBURG (German Development Institute - DIE)

Science, Technology and Innovation (STI), knowledge sharing and capacity building are widely recognised as essential to achieving developmental goals and are central to a large number of donor interventions and programmes. At the same time, substantial change has taken place in development aid communities with new actors and a variety of approaches to funding and assisting increased capacities in innovation.

The session will include short presentations from panelists followed by discussion. The session aims to do the following:

- Summarise some of the emerging trends in aid agencies;
- Compare and document different agencies' programmes, projects and initiatives in the field of STI especially in relation to current initiatives undertaken by 'traditional' donor agencies in Europe, America and Asia;
- Explore the use of different policy frameworks such as entrepreneurship, innovation systems and transformative innovation policy as a guide to interventions;
- Discuss main enablers and barriers and begin to generate common research and evaluation questions;
- Discuss possible avenues to enabling new types of collaboration among emerging stakeholders and research communities as well as among traditional donors;
- Identify future research proposals that address pressing issues for donor agencies engaging with the issue of innovation and policy learning.

Special Session 2.1

Thursday, October 12, 12:30 – 14:00

Special Session 2.1: Public policies for innovation, economic and industrial development: Lessons learned, new possibilities combined with some re-emerging trends in the new global context

Location: Central Auditorium

Chair: YANNIS CALOGHIROU (Professor of Economics of Technology and Industrial Strategy, National Technical University of Athens)

Panelists:

FRANCO MALERBA (Professor of Applied Economics, Bocconi University, Milan, Italy): “Industrial Policy as a necessary tool for innovative development and growth in Sectoral Systems: Empirical Evidence and theoretical explorations for catch-up countries”

KEUN LEE (Professor of Economics, Seoul National University, Republic of Korea): “Industrial Policy for Smart Specialization: Avoiding both target and design failures”

COSTIS VAITSOS (Professor Emeritus of Political Economy, National and Kapodistrian University of Athens, Greece): “The reemergence of nationalism in supranational institutions within alternative European economic integration schemes”

GABRIELA DUTRÉNIT (Professor of Economics of Innovation, Universidad Autónoma Metropolitana, Mexico): “STI policy in a context of inequality: The dilemma between competitiveness and national problems”

Public policy has proved fundamental for innovation, economic and industrial development and catch-up. There are now many lessons that can be learned from the results obtained from an active involvement of the government in innovative and industrial activity and industry evolution, the diffusion of new technologies and the growth of advanced and emerging economies. This panel will discuss the general evolutionary and innovation systems rationale for public policy and the main lessons derived from a wide set of interventions in advanced and in emerging economies. In addition, in terms of governance and policy context, the reemergence of nationalism in supranational institutions within alternative European economic schemes should be considered.

Special Session 2.2

Thursday, October 12, 12:30 – 14:00

Special Session 2.2: Towards STI indicators for inclusive development

Location: Room 1

Chair: ISMAEL RÀFOLS (Ingenio [CSIC-UPV], Universitat Politècnica de València)

Speakers:

FRED GAULT (United Nations University - MERIT & Institute for Economic Research on Innovation, Tshwane University of Technology, South Africa)

ERIKA KRAEMER-MBULA (Institute for Economic Research on Innovation, Tshwane University of Technology, South Africa)

SLAVO RADOSEVIC (University College London, UK)

JUDITH SUTZ (University of the Republic, Uruguay)

The academic community is starting to acknowledge that innovation does not necessarily lead to improvements in wellbeing, social justice or sustainability. Innovation can lead to positive social outcomes, such as higher crop yields or better healthcare, as well as negative outcomes, such as increases in inequality or destruction of the environment. However, our current systems to measure STI activities are built under conceptual models that assume that more science, more technology and more innovation are always good.

In order to foster innovation for inclusive development, we may need different types and different uses of indicators. Perhaps we need to measure STI activities in closer connection to their different effects on inclusive development. This presents challenges at multiple levels. This special session will explore several ongoing efforts to develop new STI indicators that are related or sensitive to inclusive development.

First, it is important to “domesticate” or adapt existing STI indicators in such a way that they are appropriate for specific contexts – indicators that are valid in some territories are problematic in others with different conditions. This is important for example regarding technological upgrading (Radosevic and Yoruk, 2016; Bianco, Gras and Sutz, 2016)

Second, it is necessary to capture STI activities that are currently invisible. This might involve for example, developing innovation surveys for households, governments and the informal economy (Charmes, Gault and Wunsch-Vincent, 2017) or using more comprehensive and inclusive databases on publications (Chavarro et al, 2016).

Third, STI activities need to be treated not as unidimensional scalar, but as a vector describing open socio-technical trajectories. Similar STI activities leading to similar paces of innovation may differ in their outcome in terms of inclusive development.

The panellists will introduce various efforts aimed at pluralising S&T indicators so that they better align with inclusive development, and discuss their implementation in policy.

Special Session 2.3

Thursday, October 12, 12:30 – 14:00

Special Session 2.3: Transformative innovation for creative reconstruction of the Africa-Europe relation for mutual benefit

Location: Room 8

Chair: MAMMO MUCHIE (Tshwane University of Technology, South Africa): “Imagineering and Innovating Principled Relationship between Africa and Europe”

Panelists:

EDWARD LORENZ (GREDEG, University of Nice & CNRS): “Africalics-Eurolics Partnership for the Sustainable Development Goals”

GLENDA KRUSS (Centre for Science, Technology and Innovation Indicators of the Human Sciences Research Council, South Africa): “A Critique of the Dominant Models and Approaches to Indicators, and the Design of a New Framework that Can Assess Innovation for Inclusive Development in Africa”

ANN NJOKI KINGIRI (African Centre for Technology Studies Research, Kenya): “Differences in Capacity Building in Innovation and Development in the Higher Educational Institutions in Europe and Africa”

GEORGE OWUSU ESSEGBEY (Science and Technology Policy Research Institute of the Council for Scientific and Industrial Research, Ghana): “Science, Technology and Innovation Policy - Issues of Relevance, Instrumentality and Impact from both Cases in Europe and Africa”

The relationship between Europe and Africa has gone through major historical routes. Europe has colonised Africa and divided the continent into Franco phone, Lusophone, Anglo phone and Levantine Phone areas that still keep alive even after the colonial era has passed. Colonialism was seen as philanthropy to Africa where Europe gave civilisation, religion and commerce to Africa. There is still debate on how to look back and explain the colonial relationship in order to craft a new relationship based on equality, respect, and appreciation of a new relationship to evolve anchored on mutually beneficial values and principles. As both Europe and Africa are geographically connected, what takes place in Africa affects Europe and the vice versa. The relationship has to be innovated to emerge fully and transparently based entirely on mutual benefit in every sphere of activity. This panel will address not merely the problems in the Africa-Europe relationship from the past. The focus will be the present and the future being forward looking with transformative innovation to create a new creative reconstruction by examining specifically and systematically all the patterns of relationship in science, technology, innovation, research, knowledge, education, economics, politics and all the relevant aspects and dimensions of social and economic life. This is a call for a paradigm shift to move away from any previously mutually unbeneficial relations by discovering new and innovate ways to frame both conceptually and in practice to promote the foundational principles and values for explicit, tangible and measurable mutually beneficial relationships between Africa and Europe.

Special Session 3.1

Friday, October 13, 14:40 – 16:10

Special Session 3.1: Innovating out of the crisis and stagnation: Strategies for Europe

Location: Central Auditorium

Chair: ACHILLEAS MITSOS (University of the Aegean, former Director General for Research at the European Commission)

Speakers:

JAN FAGERBERG (University of Oslo, Norway): "Addressing the climate challenge and economic stagnation: The role of innovation policy"

MANUEL MIRA GODINHO (University of Lisbon, Portugal): "Research and Innovation in Southern Europe, 2007-2016: A troubled decade"

YANNIS CALOGHIROU (National Technical University of Athens, Greece): "Delivering on the growth promise in the peripheral European countries: How can an "innovating out of the crisis" strategy work in Greece"

FRANK MOULAERT (KU Leuven, Belgium): "When innovation lost its social character. Or not?"

This special session aims at highlighting the role of innovation and innovation policies for exiting out of stagnation and crisis in Europe.

The point of departure is the current debate on the problems and challenges facing different areas in Europe and Europe as a whole. It is widely accepted that many of the problems are long-term in nature and related to different capacities for adapting to changes in the Global and European environment. This leads to the suggestion that a fundamental transformation of the economy is required by adopting policies with much greater emphasis on innovation in all its forms in the context of a European strategy for sustainable growth, environmentally as well as socially.

Next, a broader analysis of research and innovation indicators will follow on Southern European countries. The idea is to assess the impact of the crisis, estimate elasticities of the relevant variables in relation to R&D indicators, the relationship with the macroeconomic policies and how those countries are getting (or not...) out of the crisis. Other dimensions of the innovation systems, including the industrial structure and specialization, and how they have affected the observed performances will also be discussed.

In the same vein, the missing dimension of the adopted policies in Greece during the 8 year crisis, combined with very tough austerity measures led to a very unbalanced policy mix. In this regard, the session will focus on the design and implementation of a system of policies based on linking knowledge, innovation entrepreneurship and capacity building which could mobilise the productive sector of the economy, the knowledge producing and diffusing organisations, and the social actors.

Finally, starting from the history of thought and practice of innovation, the trajectories of meanings and theorisation of these concept will be explored. Two questions will be discussed: How to rebound innovation with its social roots? And how this rebounding can lead to a more integrated approach to the relationship between innovation and development in all its human dimensions?

Special Session 3.2

Friday, October 13, 14:40 – 16:10

Special Session 3.2: 'Transforming Innovation': How do ideas about transformative change impact on innovation systems thinking?

Location: Room 1

Chair: JOANNA CHATAWAY (Science Policy Research Unit - SPRU, University of Sussex)

Speakers:

ERIKA KRAEMER MBULA (Institute for Economic Research on Innovation, Tshwane University of Technology, South Africa)

CHRISTINA CHAMINADE (Department of Economic History, Lund University)

RASIGAN MAHARAJH (Centre for Research on Evaluation, Science and Technology, Stellenbosch University, South Africa)

As innovation systems and STS approaches evolve, they have begun to interact and inform each other in interesting ways. This session will explore some of the intersects between innovation systems thinking and analysis of transitions and transformation of socio-technical regimes. We will explore the following questions:

- What are the main points of agreement and contradiction between analysis based on innovation systems on the one hand and thinking related to socio-technical regimes and transformative innovation thinking on the other?
- Do innovation systems and transformative innovation represent different ways of framing research and innovation policy?
- What are the implications of transformation in one region or country for other geographies?

Parallel Paper Sessions 1

Wednesday, October 11, 15:00 – 16:30

1.01 INNOVATION STUDIES, DIFFERENT APPROACHES AND METHODOLOGIES 1

Room: 9, Chair: Gabriel Yoguel

RITIKA JAIN: "Who spends more on innovation in India? Public versus private sector enterprises and the effect of external borrowing"

JEE-HOON KI: "An evolutionary model of changes in industrial leadership and catch-up by latecomers: Knowledge spillover, endogenous innovation, and the 'incumbent trap'"

MAURICIO URIONA MALDONADO, SARA S. GROBBELAAR: "System dynamics modelling in the innovation systems"

Discussant: ISABEL BORTAGARAY

1.02 INNOVATION STUDIES, DIFFERENT APPROACHES AND METHODOLOGIES 2

Room: 17, Chair: Erkki Karo

JUAN FELIPE BERRUTTI RAMPA, CARLOS BIANCHI: "Assessing the effect of public funding on private innovation investment in Uruguay"

CLAUDIA DE FUENTES, FERNANDO SANTIAGO, SERDAL TEMEL: "Innovation barriers and the role of institutional context in emerging economies"

NANDITHA MATHEW, MARCO GRAZZI, DANIELE MOSCHELLA: "Efficiency, innovation, and imported inputs: Determinants of export performance among Indian manufacturing firms"

Discussant: MICHIKO IIZUKA

1.03 SCIENCE, TECHNOLOGY, INNOVATION POLICY AND DEVELOPMENT 1

Room: Central auditorium, Chair: K J Joseph

KEUN LEE, MARINA SZAPIRO, ZHUQING MAO: "From Global Value Chains (GVC) to innovation systems for Local Value Chains"

Local Industry Panel

“The Greek productive system in the post crisis era: A pattern for an effective transformation through innovation and sustainable development”

Friday, October 13, 16:15 – 17:45

Central Auditorium

Chair: AGGELOS TSAKANIKAS

(Laboratory of Industrial and Energy Economics, National Technical University of Athens)

In the midst of the economic crisis and in a quest for a new growth pattern for Greece, the role of the private sector and the institutional set up is decisive for an effective transformation of the local business dynamics. Greece needs to enrich its entrepreneurial capacity with firms that are capable to compete in international markets that invest in innovation and manage to produce differentiated products / services that attract foreign demand. A round table of representatives from major Greek companies that have managed to develop a sustainable business model, will discuss:

- A possible roadmap to “innovate out of the crisis”
- “Lessons learnt” policy messages
- The role of technological infrastructures and platforms
- The role of university – industry relationship
- Actions, means and mechanisms to further enhance a new growth pattern model
- Business initiatives and case studies (i.e the case studies of FOODPRINT project and ECOTROPHELIA contest)

Panel Participants:

- ELKEME, Hellenic Research Centre for Metals S.A: Kimón Daniilidis, General Manager
- HELLENIC PETROLEUM S.A.: Spyros J. Kiartzis, Manager New Technologies and Alternative Energy Sources.
- TITAN CEMENT: Marios Katsiotis, Group Research & Innovation Manager,
- KORRES S.A. NATURAL PRODUCTS: Marianna Ralli, Scientific Affairs.
- FEDERATION OF HELLENIC FOOD INDUSTRIES (SEVT): Vasso Papadimitriou Director General
- ERICSSON HELLAS SA: Maria Boura, Head of Government & Industry Relations & Communications, South East Europe

Globelics Start-up Event

Friday, October 13, 18:45 – 20:45

Room 15

The closing of the conference will mark the launch of an open-event for innovative entrepreneurship in Greece. The Globelics Startup Event aims to mobilise the wider Greek start-ups ecosystem and attract participants who are interested in issues related to entrepreneurial activity and innovation.

The event will include a panel discussion focusing on how the local innovation and entrepreneurship ecosystem can be supported and further developed in order to nurture and strengthen innovative and sustainable business models. More specifically, the discussion will be organised in three thematic rounds: (a) current status of the start-up ecosystem; (b) schemes and mechanisms to support new business ventures; and (c) new possibilities for financing and extroversion.

The event will be attended by young entrepreneurs, executives from international organizations, academics, as well as representatives from start-up funding schemes. Discussion will be also fed from the Globelics community in order to produce fruitful ideas and useful lessons from international practice.

Social Program

Cultural Events

Conference participants and their accompanying guests are welcome to participate in the guided tours organised on the second day of the conference. Shuttle bus transfer from the conference venue and to the Gala dinner venue is included.

Guided Tour 1: New Acropolis Museum

Thursday, October 12, 17:15 – 18:45

Registration required for conference participants and their accompanying guests. Please bring your conference badge that is marked with a blue post.

The museum was inaugurated in 2009 and is located opposite of the Acropolis itself. Archaic and classical finds from the Acropolis site are displayed here. The visitor progresses gradually upward through the building, where on the top floor, the marble frieze that once ran around the top of the Parthenon await. The visit includes: a) the permanent exhibition, and b) the very interesting temporary exhibition “emotions” which sheds light on the unseen world of emotions in the personal, social and political life of antiquity.

Meeting point: Outside the Central Auditorium of the Conference Venue at 16:15. Conference participants or accompanying guests that will come at the cultural event on their own, must join the main group at the entrance of the museum at 17:00.

Guided Tour 2: National Archaeological Museum of Athens

Thursday, October 12, 17:15 – 18:45

Registration required for conference participants and their accompanying guests. Please bring your conference badge that is marked with a red post.

The museum has more than 11.000 exhibits and offers a panoramic experience of the Greek civilization from prehistory to late antiquity. Numerous galleries house five large permanent collections: a) the Prehistoric Antiquities, b) the Sculptures Collection, c) the Vase and Minor Arts, d) the Bronze Collection, and e) the only Egyptian and Near Eastern Antiquities Collection in Greece. The conference participants will be guided in all five collections as well as in the new temporary exhibition “Odysseys”, which is the main commemorative event on the occasion of the 150th anniversary since the foundation of the Museum.

Meeting point: Outside the Central Auditorium of the Conference Venue at 16:15. The conference participants or accompanying guests that will come at the cultural event on their own, must join the main group at the entrance of the museum at 17:00.

Guided Tour 3: Stavros Niarchos Foundation Cultural Center (SNFCC)

Thursday, October 12, 17:15 – 18:45

Registration required for conference participants and their accompanying guests. Please bring your conference badge that is marked with an orange post.

The Stavros Niarchos Foundation Cultural Center (SNFCC) is a sustainable, world-class cultural, educational and recreational urban complex that is built on the edge of the Falirio Bay and includes three main facilities: a) The new National Library of Greece, b) The new Greek National Opera, and c) The Stavros Niarchos Park. The conference participants will be guided in all the three main facilities of the complex. The SNFCC is one of the world's most sustainable building complexes of its size. In November 2016, the SNFCC achieved the highest and most stringent international standard for sustainable design and construction - the Platinum LEED – for its innovative architecture and green technology.

Meeting point: Outside the Central Auditorium of the Conference Venue at 16:15. Conference participants or accompanying guests that will come at the cultural event on their own, must join the main group at the entrance of the SNFCC main buildings at 17:00.

Guided Walk: Sites of historic and cultural interest in the centre of Athens

Thursday, October 12, 17:15 – 18:45

Registration required for conference participants and their accompanying guests. Please bring your conference badge that is marked with a green post.

The first part of the event (20 min.) regards a guided tour by bus of the most historic buildings and squares in Athens' city centre, i.e. Panathenaic Stadium, the House of the Greek Parliament, Syntagma Square, the so-called Athens Trilogy etc. The second part (1 h) includes a guided walk through Plaka, with the picturesque neoclassical houses and pedestrian streets, the Ancient Roman Forum (Agora), Monastiraki Square, and the pedestrian street "Adrianou" with the wonderful view to Acropolis, to the Ancient Greek Forum (Agora) and to the ancient temple of Hephaestus at Thisseio area, which is the end point of the walk. Please wear shoes appropriate for walking.

Meeting point: Outside the Central Auditorium of the Conference Venue at 16:15. The conference participants or accompanying guests that will come at the cultural event on their own, must join the main group at 17:00 at the starting point of the tour i.e. just opposite Panathenaic Stadium (Kallimarmaro).

Gala Dinner

Thursday, October, 12, 20:30 – 24:00

Registration required for conference participants and their accompanying guests. Please bring your conference badge received at conference registration.

The gala dinner is sponsored by Latsis Public Benefit Foundation. It will be held at "Ecali club", the first country club in Greece, which is located in the northern suburbs of Athens. During the dinner there will be a welcome speech by the Mayor of Athens. The three best papers written by PhD students will be announced by the Globelics Scientific Board. Enjoy the relaxing atmosphere of the club accompanied with nice Greek food, music and dancing.

Venue Address: 15, Lofou str., Ecali 14578.

Conference Contributors

Conference Reviewers

The 15th Globelics Conference in Athens has received 495 full paper submissions of which almost 200 have been selected for oral and poster presentation. The selection process was based on a double blind peer review by more than 300 scholars focusing on relevance, academic quality and originality. The review corps is essential to the Globelics Community. The Committees of the 15th Globelics Conference are grateful for the contribution of scholars that have dedicated their valuable time and supported our community.

We hope that the Globelics reviewers will continue their engagement in the Globelics community and will contribute to the reviewing process of upcoming events. A list of the Globelics reviewers is available at www.globelics.org.

Community of Volunteers

In the context of the 15th Globelics Conference, a large community of volunteers was set up to provide multi-level support for the activities that will take place during the three-day conference.

The volunteer community includes undergraduate and postgraduate students, PhD candidates and graduates from 9 different Higher Education Institutions across the country, with more than 120 active members. In this effort, allies and supporters are also the established initiatives of students based in the NTUA and other institutions.

Guidelines for Oral and Poster Presentations

Guidelines for paper presenters

Each parallel session normally includes three papers and lasts 90 minutes. Time allowing, the paper presenters should highlight one or two issues from the other papers presented in the session of particular relevance to their own work. A discussant will subsequently comment on all papers presented in the session. The discussion then continues in plenary.

The standard time schedule looks like this:

- Introduction = 5 minutes
- First paper presentation by the author = 15 minutes
- Second paper presentation by the author = 15 minutes
- Third paper presentation by the author = 15 minutes
- Discussant of all three papers = 15 minutes
- General discussion and replies from the authors = approximately 25 minutes.

Projectors will be available for PowerPoint presentations. We recommend that presenters bring their presentation on a USB memory device.

Guidelines for poster presenters

Poster presenters will prepare a display of their work using an A0 paper size (84 cm wide × 119 cm tall). Presenters must be available for presenting their work and answering questions during the poster session.

Ideally, a poster will provide information on:

- Title of the paper
- Name and affiliation of author(s)
- Aim of the paper
- Presentation of theoretical framework
- Presentation of data (if empirical paper)
- Presentation of main findings and implications
- Main references

The posters are intended to grab attention and quickly communicate the ideas and relevance of papers presented. The use of graphics and colours is encouraged as well as the use of large fonts. To the extent possible, hard copies of the paper will be available for interested colleagues.

Boards to put up the posters will be available in the poster room. Globelics Students/volunteers will help presenters hang their posters.

The Antikythera mechanism

The Antikythera mechanism is part of the logo of the 15th Globelics Conference in Athens. It is an ancient analogue computer and orrery used to predict astronomical positions and eclipses for calendrical and astrological purposes. Recovered in 1901 from the Antikythera shipwreck off the Greek island of Antikythera, it is believed to have been designed and constructed by Greek scientists. All known fragments of the Antikythera mechanism are kept at the National Archaeological Museum, in Athens. After the knowledge of this technology was lost at some point in antiquity, technological artefacts approaching its complexity and workmanship did not appear again until the development of mechanical astronomical clocks in Europe in the 14th century.
